ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0054]   Described herein is a video decoding related system and method for error detection in a motion vector address computer. A circuit determines addresses for reference pixels. The circuit comprises an input and logic. The input receives parameters comprising a picture type indicator for indicating a type of a picture. The logic determines whether the parameters received by the input are valid.